Celebrating 100 Days!

Our elementary schools had great fun today with activities to mark the 100th day of school. It's an annual milestone that calls for celebration and reflection.

Today, February 10, 2017, is the 100th day of school! The 100th day originally was on our calendar for yesterday, February 9, but snow and ice necessitated closing school for the day. So today marks the big day – a great way to close out the week at our elementary schools, where each students of each grade level had a chance to celebrate this big number in a big way. I believe the 100th day also is an opportunity for reflection at the middle and high schools, and all the way up through our staff, administration and in our community.

One of the best aspects of my job is talking with our students, not only during events and occasional classroom visits, but during what I call Town Hall Meetings, in which I meet three times a year with student groups at each of our middle and high schools. I completed the second round of middle school Town Hall Meetings earlier this week. One topic, because it was coming up at the end of the week, was the 100th day of school. Even though students at the middle school level tend to think of themselves as much older than the elementary school students, they expressed to me how much they enjoyed the 100th day of school celebrations during their elementary years. There was a certain wistfulness as they shared memories, and it gave us an opportunity to discuss the value of celebrating milestones. The discussion then turned to goals and the idea of leaving a legacy when the eighth graders move on to high school. The students have given a great deal of thought to their legacy. All three middle school groups agreed that modeling and promoting kindness and inclusiveness – to help mold their schools' future atmosphere – would be an ideal legacy.

We can all benefit from reflection on this 100th day of the school year. With 81 school days left before the last day of school, we would do well to take stock of what we've modeled, what we've accomplished, and what we want our legacy to be from our contributions to the 2016-2017 school year. We are slightly more than half way through the year. There is plenty of time to accomplish items still on the back burner, to revisit the goals we've met and use them to move forward, to formulate new plans for the future and carry them out with enthusiasm. Our Cherry Hill students will benefit from us committing to a constant cycle of improvement, of honest reflection and interaction, of choosing our words to promote inclusion and acceptance.

I am excited to continue working on a positive legacy in the days and years ahead. I hope you will join me, whatever your role in the Cherry Hill Public Schools – student, parent, staff member or community member. Your ideas are always welcome. Please become or stay involved in your PTA, booster groups and community organizations. Come to the Board of Education meetings and join me for my Online Lunches. Stay connected through our web site and social media platforms. The more informed we all are, the better we will be at working together.
