Hate Has No Home in CHPS

We've joined Cherry Hill Township to spread the word that our community is dedicated to inclusiveness and embracing diversity.

One of the ongoing messages I've repeated this school year is, "Words matter." And while I continue to believe that words matter and strive to model positive, encouraging, constructive speech every day, I would like to expand that mantra to include, "Actions matter."

Our community has faced some challenging events this year, both within the Cherry Hill Public Schools and in the larger community of Cherry Hill Township. One of the most recent challenges was a threat a few weeks ago against the Katz JCC. This was one of many similar threats orchestrated across the country on the same day. Our community immediately rose up to defy that threat – to say that we will not tolerate threats or hatred of any sort directed at any group or individual. Within a few days, Cherry Hill residents JoAnne Negrin and Susan McGunnigle, also CHPS's technology department communication specialist, became part of the Hate Has No Home Here movement. The two organized the distribution of yard signs to send the powerful message in a visible way. We in the Cherry Hill Public Schools liked the idea so much, we made sure each of our schools now has a Hate Has No Home Here sign. Students, such as those pictured above at John A. Carusi Middle School, were instrumental in putting up the signs outside their schools.

The movement of solidarity against hate expanded, as Cherry Hill Township leadership approached the District about being part of a "Hate Has No Home in Cherry Hill" video project. The video, filmed, edited and produced by Cherry Hill West Broadcast students, features members of the diverse Cherry Hill community and students and administrators from several of our schools who represent the District as a whole. I had the honor of speaking in the video as well, with my mascot friends Westley the Lion from Cherry Hill West and Crimson the

At the Township Council meeting on March 27, Council recognized West seniors Kacper Miklus and Nick Alberto as well as sophomore Zach McAuliffe for their work on the “Hate Has No Home in Cherry Hill” video. Mayor Chuck Cahn also announced the formation of the Township’s Human Relations Advisory Committee, of which I am pleased to be a member. The commitment to improving where we live, work and learn as an even more welcoming, safe environment is something all of us on committee take very seriously.

We will expand this conversation in our school district with the creation of a district level Human Relations Advisory Committee. There is tremendous work that must be done in our school district to honor, to respect, and to provide voice to all of our students, our families, and our staff members. As the tenor of conversations in our nation have shifted to a more divisive and openly confrontational level, it is our responsibility in Cherry Hill to be vocal and actively engaged in supporting all of the members of our community. There are members of our community who have not felt supported, who have not felt heard – this must stop. Today. We shall drive this conversation. We shall bring this conversation to the front in each of our schools and in our district. We shall improve to benefit each individual and we will be a better community for it.

As March leaves us on a cold, dreary note weather-wise, I encourage you to get out and enjoy the lighthearted musical comedy Sister Act, opening tonight at Cherry Hill High School West. (See the Upcoming Events list at right for dates, times and a link to tickets.) Keep an eye out in the coming weeks for the dates and times of our elementary music concerts, happening in the evening in all 12 of our elementary schools this spring. The silver medal was awarded to Adam Kriesman and the bronze medals were awarded to sophomores Zoe Gold, Vivian Lu, Jeanie No, and Melissa Oberstaedt; juniors Averielle van Horne and Bryan Aylesworth; and seniors Matthew Oberstaedt and Brianna Dumont. The silver and bronze medals honor scores in the 80th and 70th percentile, respectively.

After an application and interview process, senior Lia Yamamoto has been nominated by the Southern NJ Chapter of AATG for the Senior Award Trip. The final decision will come from the AATG national office by mid-April. Students who score in the 90th percentile and have had less than two weeks of travel experience in German-speaking countries may apply. This award involves a month-long experience in Germany: a home stay, attending a German high school, and travel.
