Women's History Month

Today is International Women's Day, part of Women's History Month for the Month of March. WE celebrate those around us who have made or are on the verge of making history!

We're now one week into March, and one week into Women's History Month, which is being celebrated internationally and in our schools. Rosa International Middle School 6th and 7th grade students, for example, are broadcasting daily presentations on R-TV, the school's television news program, about women who have created world-changing inventions and discoveries. Other schools have put up showcase displays and bulletin boards, have integrated women's history into daily lessons, and will have guest speakers throughout the month.

And WE don't have to look far to find women and girls who have made or are making history – they are right here in the Cherry Hill Public Schools. Eleven girls at Cherry Hill High School West made history this year as one of South Jersey's largest contingents of high school girl wrestlers since the sport was officially sanctioned for female students by the New Jersey

Teacher In-Service Day

State Interscholastic Athletic Association (NJSIAA) in October. Cherry Hill High School East has a smaller group of girl wrestlers on their team, as well, with their number expected to grow. In another traditionally male-dominated arena, six girls at Cherry Hill East last year formed the school's first all-female VEX Robotics team, Y-Naught (now numbering 7 members, pictured above) who will be competing in their second World Championship on April 24, having won the State Design Award for the second year in a row. All of these young women have already shown they can blaze a trail in traditionally "male" environments. We're excited to see what they'll do in the future, likely making their mark on history with even bigger accomplishments!

For news about the latest accomplishments of our students, be sure to check our social media platforms, Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, and the District web site. Have a question for us that's also of interest to the larger community? Submit it via our Quick Question portal for a publicly posted answer!
